Ted Kryczka for May, June and July.

Fred MacLeod for August, September and October.

Correspondence from the Old Man River Regional Planning Commission advised that the government having increased their share of the annual payment to the Commission by 10 per cent has resulted in a surplus at the end of the year. Members of the Commission therefore receive a rebate and Coleman's rebate amounted to $150.

Membership cost for Coleman for 1967 will be $620.

The report also indicated that a Regional Study of the entire south western part of Alberta would cost in the vicinity of $45,000 and would be done over a two-year period. The 1967 cost would be $25,000 with the balance of $20,000 to be used in 1968.

Mayor Holyk reported that a second hand grader in good working condition had been purchased by the town from a local contractor at a price of $7123.22. The old unit will now be put up for sale.

The secretary was instructed to write to Manufacturers Life and request that a representative of the company visit council at its November 22 meeting to discuss cancellation and payment of some of the town employees' plans.

Council will not renew the contract for opening and closing of graves at the local cemeteries, where town crews will undertake this work.

Correspondence was received from the town auditors Collins and Haynes, making several recommendations and suggestions to simplify town business.

These recommendations will be studied by the Finance Committee and discussed at the next meeting.

The letter also commended town secretary-treasurer Dick Jensen for the manner in which he has organized the town books in the short time he has been in office.

OF MANY THINGS
(By Ambrose Hills)

Filling The Memory Kits

One of the many reasons we abandoned big city life and moved to Greenhorn Farm was to give our three youngest children a spot where they could ride horses, feed cattle and pack their memory kit with thrills and adventures children in the city never know. Ours will be with us another five years or so and we are determined they will be full and exciting years to be looked back on with pleasure all their lives.

We've had visitors here who, though in their late sixties, remember their farm boyhood so well they actually had moist eyes when I took them down to our barn and they experienced that wonderful smell of ammonia and heard the horses chomping and stomping in the warmth of the steamy barn. Many retired prairie farmers live in White Rock now, and they love to come out here to sample the farm atmosphere once again. I enjoy having them, because few of them can resist the urge to pull a few weeds, or muck out the barn or do a chore or two. One of them spent most of his visit working on our fencing, and he got a big kick out of it, too.

There is some kind of tug about the land, something that sinks into your carcass so that you never forget it. I was a small-town boy, but used to spend some time on nearby farms each summer, and I suppose that's what made me long to own a farm all those years when I was slaving over a typewriter in the city.

From the desk where I am typing this I can see Martha and Franny, just home from school, racing across the pasture, to catch Midnight and Golden Dawn. I think that the horses are as eager to be caught as the twins are to catch them, but it wouldn't do for it to be too easy—so they mosey off, down to the sheltered spot under the big cypress trees . . . and there they wait to be bridled. I'm sure those youngsters will remember that chase and the tangy snell of the woods in many a quiet moment through the rest of their days. If we were still in the city they would probably have made a quick dash for the TV set, a lousy substitute for real adventure.

What are we, anyway, but a bundle of memories. In school we used to recite a poem that began, "I am a part of all that I have met. . . ." Well, our youngsters will then be a part of daisy-bright meadows, cool and shadowy pines and cypress trees, cock pheasants rising like lightning into the morning sun, and rich-smelling earth, black as midnight from the plow. I hope, some days, when they remember their old man they'll mix him in with all those wonderful, cherished things.

Your Help Needed

In Fire Prevention
(By A. E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner)

There are signs of increasing fire destruction in the news.

The short period of Fire Prevention Week alertness has passed. We have ceased daily reports on low fire losses and the constant challenge to strive for a fire-free day in Alberta is no longer heard.

When mentioning signs of increasing fire destruction and a let-down in alertness, the Fire Commissioner has references to a report of an Edmonton boy spilling gasoline while repairing his motor cycle in the basement of his home. His clothes became ignited and had it not been for the quick action of his father and the quick response from the fire department, another fire tragedy would have resulted.

Gasoline should NEVER be brought into dwelling premises for any purpose.

Another near fire tragedy happened in Edmonton last week when a woman was cleaning clothes with gasoline in an open container in her basement. This is very dangerous and I must repeat and repeat the warning that gasoline should NEVER be brought into a home for any purpose.

Of course, we can't supervise the daily actions of people around their homes and gasoline is so easily obtained that this danger is most difficult to handle.

Fire Department inspectors can do a great service during home inspection programs to advise home owners against the danger of misuse of gasoline in the home.

It is well known that most fires are preventable but it takes care and thought to avoid doing foolish things that give fire a place to start. A careful businessman knows he should never leave high value property unsupervised; how much more important then never to leave our most precious charges, our young children, alone at home.

As Fire Commissioner, I beg all Albertans to give the necessary attention to fire prevention in the early weeks of the winter season.

Who among us is not interested in good health — physical and mental? And they do go together, you know, the physical and the mental. Your Mental Health Association distributes a free pamphlet entitled "Your Guide to Good Health", that you will find enormously helpful. Write for it today to the Canadian Mental Health Association, 619 Revillon Building, Edmonton, Alberta.

Hunters Lost In Pass

Two Edmonton RCAF hunters, Bill Yeoman and a friend, accompanied by Sid Price of Bellevue, were lost for over 17 hours while on a hunting trip in the Lynx Creek district, about 20 miles south of Blairmore November 4th.

The trio were driven to the Lynx Creek district by Clem Bone of Hillcrest at 7 a.m. Friday, and were to have returned to the road by 5 p.m. to be picked up by Clem Bone.

When the party did not show up 7 p.m. Mr. Bone fired a three-shot distress signal to see if the hunting party would answer. He got a reply, and after waiting another hour and a half, no one showed up so Mr. Bone decided to fire another signal to see if the party were getting near him. He got a reply, but the shots still seemed to be as far away as the first signal.

Mr. Bone then returned to Blairmore to get help and returned to Lynx Creek with Charlie Cox and Frank McDonald of Blairmore and Morris Bone of Hillcrest who went into the bush to try to find the trio. After about a two-hour search the search party came out of the bush and were taken to Blairmore and Melvin Cox of Blairmore and Clem Smith of Bellevue, two experienced woodsmen, were taken to Lynx Creek and marched out in the direction that the shots were heard. At 4 a.m. the lost hunters were brought out, none the worse for their experience except being hungry and tired. They had bedded down for the night around a small camp fire.

What To Do About 'Flu

Ahead lie the months when 'flu flourishes at the expense of all too many victims. According to a pamphlet put out by the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, INFLUENZA - THE FACTS, children 10 years of age and under are more open to attack than others, but nobody is safe — as hundreds of thousands learn every year.

What can you do about the 'flu? If you want to prevent it, the pamphlet states, the best thing to do is to be vaccinated. So far vaccination is no hard-and-fast guarantee, because new strains of 'flu virus may get past the guard, but chances of escape are good.

The Surgeon General of the U.S. has gone on record as saying that he believed that 60,000 out of the 35,000 influenza deaths which occurred in his country in three years could have been prevented by vaccination. That is nearly three out of four.

The leaflet tells about the causes of 'flu, who is in most danger from it, how it damages. It also makes six suggestions about how to cope if the virus does attack. Here are the suggestions:

Call your doctor.

Go to bed. Even if your aches and pains and sore throat turn out to be nothing but a cold, bed rest will help you get well sooner.

Keep warm and drink plenty of liquids if your doctor can't see you right away. A wash cloth, wrung out of cold water and placed on your forehead may relieve your fever.

DO NOT take medicine your doctor does not prescribe.

Stay in bed until your doctor says you can get up. He will probably tell you to stay in bed for at least two days after the fever is gone.

Avoid exposure to other sickness after you are out of bed. 'Flu lowers your resistance.

The leaflet is free and may be obtained from the Association, which sends you Christmas Seals or from the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, 343 O'Connor Street, Ottawa, Ont.

The Homemaker

(By Patricia Peters, District Home Economist, Box 40, Claresholm, Alberta. Phone 235-3242, Cardston, Phone 653-3462; Pincher Creek, Phone 627-3130 or 627-4022)

Leaders Day:

On Friday, November 4th, a 4-H "Leaders Day" was held in Lethbridge for leaders of girls' clubs in the southwest area.

We had a very interesting, and I think, profitable day, with an excellent representation of clubs from this area. One theme which kept recurring in the session was the importance of parental support; not just mothers, but Fathers too; not just those who feel qualified to help in actual project work, but those who might have other talents or services to offer. Even the positive effect of a willingness to help in any way you can, and to show up at Parents days, achievement days, etc., is of benefit to your child who needs to know she has your support.

Del Bonita Sewing

Five days of the past two weeks have been spent in the Del Bonita hall with an enthusiastic and busy group of ladies on the first of several sewing clinics set for this fall and winter. In case you are interested, tentative plans at least have been made for clinics as follows: Graman, one week, January; Pincher Creek, latter part of February and Claresholm in mid-March. Fort Macleod and Twin Butte have also indicated interest in sewing classes.

Food Costs

We've been hearing quite a lot lately about housewives up in arms over rising food costs, and attempting to make their protests felt by boycotting markets.

At the same time workers in widely assorted fields are going on strike for higher pay, even farmers are getting into the act—remember the Ontario milk producers this summer?

I may be failing to grasp the finer economic principles involved, but to me it seems to be a vicious circle of cause and effect: up go wages—up go costs, and so on around and around. However, it behooves housewives to be informed on the trends in food costs, and to combat UNNECESSARY rises by every means in their power.

What means do you have? Well, there is the vocal protest and decisive action which many homemakers are currently embarked on which brings the problem to the forefront of the public consciousness, and brings pressure to bear on the large supermarkets and food store chains which may do some good, since public opinion is a very strong weapon indeed.

Then there is the every-day reliance on care in shopping—know where your food dollar goes—are you spending more on "pop" than on meat? Remember everything you buy in a supermarket is not food—try separating purchases at the check-out counter, and having non-food items rung up separately. Keep track of your food costs—the average family spends about 25 per cent (more or less according to income) of its budget on food.

Finally, remember that fancy packaging and convenience foods cost you real money, and the more convenient, the more expensive. If cost per pound of meat in TV dinners were calculated, the brand of beef entree rated acceptable in rating tests in the United States would come to $2.40 per pound, the turkey to $3.60 per pound. If the convenience to you of a certain product outweighs the extra cost—fine, but be aware of what it is costing you, and shop intelligently and carefully. Consumer reaction, and resistance act as controls on production; quality, and price of consumer goods.

Happy Homemaking.

Unavoidable Death Every 100 Minutes

Every 100 minutes, every day, in Canada, a human life is snuffed out in road traffic. It is not a dignified death. It could have been avoided. The victim did not expect to die.

Every day in Canada more than 400 men, women and children are plunged into agonies of mind and body in road traffic, the Canadian Highway Safety Council reports.

Many are permanently disabled. They did not expect to be hurt. Most of them lay on unfriendly ground as strangers stared at them while they waited for assistance. It could have been avoided. "A human being is no match for 3,000 pounds of racing steel and glass, yet every day hundreds of humans challenge these speeding behemoths to duels the humans cannot win," said the Council.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council points out that the only chance the human has is to know how to recognize and avoid these highway perils. It's called defensive driving. CHSC urges every motorist to practice defensive driving during Safe Driving Week, December 1 to 7, so they will drive with more confidence and security the rest of the year.

Have you ever wondered...

...what happens to government materials and machinery when they reach pensionable age?

Three possible fates await furniture and equipment that have outlived their usefulness to a government department: retirement, transfer and the auction block. Which it will be is decided by the Alberta Commercial Branch, Department of Industry and Development. Last year, in a series of bargain sales, this agency recovered over $400,000 for a selection of items varying from horses to windows, tractors to furniture, which were still usable but no longer of use to the government. In addition, many items were sent back to work with another department where they still had a useful future.

...how far you are from a provincial park?

In most populated areas of Alberta, not more than 50 miles. As public need dictates the location of the parks, the majority are located in or near heavily populated areas and, as the population increases, so do the number of parks. Altogether, there are 41 of these playgrounds in the Province, each established and maintained by the Parks Division of the Alberta Department of Lands and Forests. It takes a staff of 500 employees to provide the parks with all the facilities and services required, such as approximately 1600 cords of cut wood supplied free each year. In addition, the Parks Division maintains 23 historic sites across the Province, ranging in size from one-quarter acre to 107 acres.

...how bridges add to Alberta's beauty?

Next time you drive Alberta's highways, watch the bridges and overpasses and see how many different designs you can count. This variety of shape and color is a contribution to the beauty of our Province by the Bridge

Branch of the Alberta Department of Highways. Each year, this Branch builds or rebuilds approximately 400 bridges, and each of the program is a part of the program to add to the interest and appearance of Alberta's highways by using varying designs, colors and materials. There are approximately 10,000 bridges under the jurisdiction of the Branch, which about 700 are steel, 2,200 concrete, 4,300 of timber, and 2,800 large culverts installed in lieu of bridges.

...what a high speed digital computer is doing down on the farm?

Actually, it isn't ON the farm. It's a part of the Data Processing Centre of the Provincial Government. However, it does contribute greatly to a comprehensive farm analysis program being undertaken by the Farm Management Branch of the Agricultural Economics Division, Alberta Department of Agriculture. Under this program, the Branch assists any farmer who so desires to maintain an accurate record of his physical and financial operation. Armed with these figures (this is where the computer comes in), economists can measure the efficiency of the farm, determine the problem areas and suggest possible solutions. Over 400 commercial farmers in Alberta are being assisted under the program, and the only costs each participant are a $10.00 processing fee and $1.00 for the account book in which the records are kept.

...how education can be made more interesting?

Aesop taught many a valuable lesson with his "Fables", because he knew that education was far more palatable when it was presented in a dramatic form. Today's version of this combination is in the radio and television broadcasts to schools by the Audio-Visual Services Branch of the Alberta Department of Education. Twice a day, during most of the school year, radio school broadcasts teach dramatic, entertaining and effective lessons in classrooms across the Province, and a number of television programs are provided each year as well. These have a two-fold purpose: to explore the value of television in education and to supplement classroom work on key subjects. In addition to the broadcast media, the Audio-Visual Services Branch provides sound films, tape recordings and filmstrips and advises teachers and administrators in their uses.

...what became of the old-fashioned, travelling dentist?

He's still here, still travelling, but no longer old-fashioned. Today, the dentist who provides service to the outlying areas of the Province has the most modern equipment, provided by the Dental Services Division of the Alberta Department of Public Health. This Division has three complete units of dental equipment which are transportable and available to those practitioners who volunteer to serve rural communities where dental services have not been established. Approved local organizations such as the Home and School Association or the Chamber of Commerce can apply for this service through the local health unit, the Alberta Department of Public Health, or the Alberta Dental Association.

double your money with Canada Savings Bonds Centennial Series

Centennial Series Canada Savings Bonds offer you their highest interest yield ever—6.48% a year when held to maturity.

The new Bonds pay annual interest at the rate of 5% for each of the first four years; 5½% for each of the next three years; 5¾% for the following year and 6% for each of the last five years—a total of $72.25 in interest on every $100 Bond.

And for the first time, there is a special compound interest option. To take full advantage of it, leave all the annual interest uncollected until Nov. 1, 1979, and you will get interest on your interest, amounting to $27.75 extra on every $100 Bond.

It all adds up to total interest of $100 on every $100 Bond. It's a safe, sure way to save. DOUBLE YOUR MONEY with Canada Savings Bonds Centennial Series.

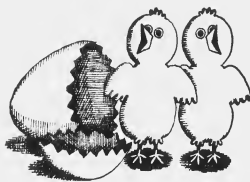

This Series retains all the traditional features which make Canada Savings Bonds Canada's most favoured investment.

They are still easy to buy for cash or on instalments where you work, bank or invest.

You may buy as little as $50 or as much as $10,000. Every Canadian resident may buy up to this limit. So can estates.

They are still simple to cash, anytime, at any bank in Canada for their full face value plus earned interest. Just fill out the redemption form on the Bond, present it to your bank and you'll get your money right away.

And now they're better than ever to keep with the highest interest yield ever and interest on interest. DOUBLE YOUR MONEY with Canada Savings Bonds Centennial Series.

CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

Report No. 15—

I have written before about the great 4,000-mile water route to be travelled by our Centennial Canoe Pageant next summer. Ten canoes manned by teams from the provinces will traverse the historic waterway from the Rocky Mountains to Montreal. The fact that Canada stretches from sea to sea is due partly to the existence of this and other waterways.

The north west passage by water across Canada was established long before the time of Confederation. In fact, one might say, it had its beginnings when Columbus and many other explorers unsuccessfully sought a seaway to the far east through the west.

The explorers discovered the first part of the waterway west of Montreal in their hunt for a route to China. Then, once found, it became the highway of the fur traders who had learned that there was local wealth to be exploited — much closer than China or India.

While the fur traders were producing considerable commercial canoe traffic between Montreal and the Rocky Mountains, other people were still intent on finding a north west passage for big ships. Twenty-two years before Confederation Sir John Franklin, the great Arctic explorer almost forgotten by Canadians today, set out to find a northern shipping route through the Arctic with two Royal Navy ships, the Erebus and the Terror.

There were 129 officers and men on Franklin's two ships when they entered the Arctic area in 1845. They were seen last in July of that year by another passing ship in Baffin's Bay. Then the Erebus and the Terror vanished and none of the 129 ever returned from the Arctic.

Numerous expeditions sent from England, from the United States and by groups from the Hudson's Bay Company searched for the lost explorers without success.

Evidence uncovered in later years proved that the Erebus and the Terror, trapped in Arctic ice, had not been abandoned until three years after they had been sighted by that passing ship in Baffin's Bay. As late as 1890 Eskimos saw a large party of white men travelling south near the main land, dragging a small boat and sleds. There are many conflicting stories about what actually happened to the 129 men.

In 1859 an expedition sent out by Lady Franklin found a written record by a captain of one of the ships. It gave an account of their terrible trials up to the spring of 1848.

Franklin was lost but the search expeditions provided information for the mapping of a vast area of the Arctic with its complicated islands, inlets and straits.

Although much knowledge was gained through Arctic expeditions in the mid-nineteenth century the canoe route across Canada remained, for a long time, the backbone of the east-west transportation system and the one we will 'rediscover' with our Centennial canoes. Even today, with all our technology, the north west passage via the Arctic waterway is not for use by commerce.

During Centennial year Canadians will be looking at history with renewed interest. Like the story of the search for the north west passage which I have barely touched in this short column, there are many more which make fascinating reading for young and old.

Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year.

You'd think one heroic deed a year was enough for any 11-year old boy — but not for our award winner, Keith. Last summer Keith and his friend Kenny Beisel were walking along Mill Creek. Attracted by the cries of some children, they discovered 2-year old Debbie Shulz lying face down in about three feet of water. Keith waded into the water, pulled the child out and handed her to Kenny. After making sure she was breathing, they took her home. The other heroic deed? Last April when Keith was on a Boy Scout hike in the Rainbow Valley area, he courageously used his windbreaker to extinguish a menacing grass fire. The windbreaker was burned, but the fire was put out.

We congratulate Keith and his enterprising friend Kenny, and thank Alberta's Weekly Newspaper Editors for their active co-operation in the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year program, sponsored by Alberta's investor-owned electric utility companies.

This is one of a series of Junior Citizen Award announcements. Our special thanks to Mrs. Dalton, Editor of the Beverly Page and to Keith's nominator, Germaine Dalton of Edmonton.
